Brief description of the activity

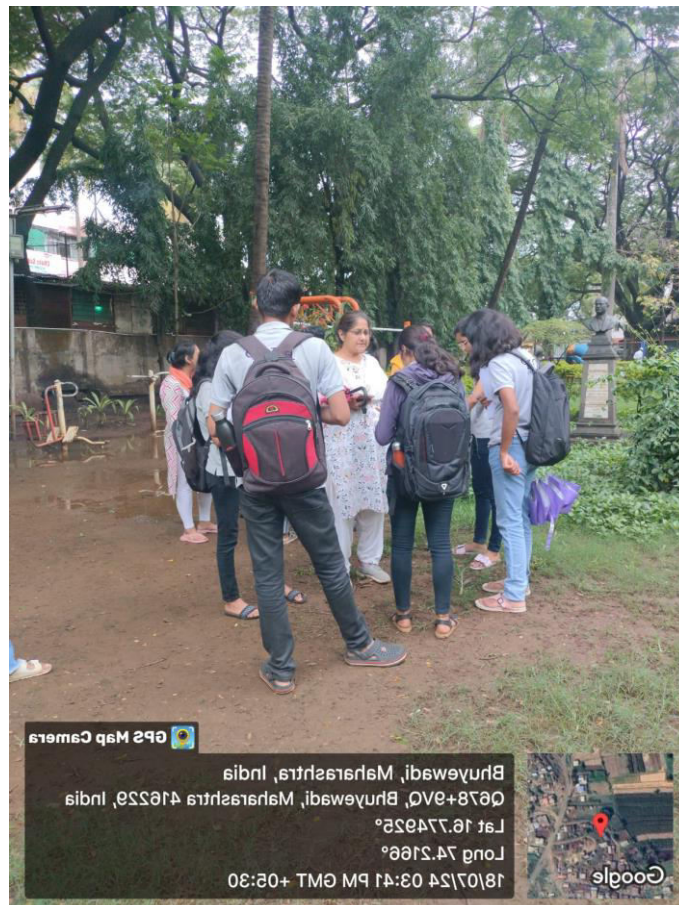

A case study visit was organized to Rajaram Hall Garden in Rajarampuri, aiming to thoroughly examine the aspects of public garden design. Students conducted an in-depth analysis of the elements and principles of landscape and softscape design, as well as the environmental and social factors that influence the garden's layout. Additionally, they assessed the dilapidated condition of the library, gymnasium, and community hall buildings, and observed the garden's exterior age and its various existing commercial uses. As part of the research, the exterior characteristics of the garden and its existing commercial applications, notably the eatery, were investigated through a series of interviews with key informants.. This case study is crucial for understanding the socio-economic impact of such activities on the garden's users.

Outcome of the activity

Students learned Elements and Principles , Hardscape and Soft scape elements , Principles of site planning, sustainable practices and landscape services of Landscape Architecture.
